1. This action is issued in response to applicant's amendment filed 5/3/04.
2. Claims 1-28 were amended. No claims were added. None were canceled.
3. Claims 1-28 are pending.
4. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 5/3/04 has been entered.

Objection

5. Claims 1-28 are objected to under 37 CFR 1.75 because: acronyms need to be spelled out e.g. A/R or SP/V or IBC. Appropriate correct is required.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

7. Claims 1-28 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Harrington (US Patent No. 5,895,454) in view of Barlow et al (US Patent No 6,038,551).

Regarding Claim 1, Harrington discloses an asset tracking, managing and servicing system, comprising:

a plurality of service/product, vendor-referenced, databases comprising SP/V data records which constitute data records describing vendor-referenced, the SP/V data records comprising service and product information (see Fig. 2, step 32, Harrington); and a C/C subsystem which is control and communication subsystem and that causes interactions between the A/R data records that are user referenced and the SP/V data records that are vendor-referenced in a manner that creates current user information, including via interactions initiated by vendors (see column 5, lines 63-67, Fig. 2, step 36, Harrington);

Harrington discloses all the claimed subject matter as discussed above, except he does not explicitly disclose a system in which the a user-referenced subsystem including, for each of a plurality of users, a respective A/R DB which comprises a database capable of storing data records relating to user-based assets or user-based information and further including a records associator and a request processor,. However, Barlow discloses the user-referenced subsystem including, for each of a plurality of users, a respective A/R DB which comprises a database capable of storing data records relating to user-based assets or user-based information and further including a records associator and a request processor, the A/R DB comprising user based assets and/or relationships (A/R) data records (see Fig 3, steps 74, 76, 68, 80, Barlow). It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the Harrington system by allowing each user to have a user-based sub system as a user profile where user can store and update all personal preferences skilled artisan would be motivated to do so in order to provide users with more efficient results according to their preferences..

Regarding Claim 2, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system further including a facility associated with the user-referenced subsystem which groups selected items from the A/R data records into groups of records (see column 5, lines 35-37, Harrington).

Regarding Claim 3, Harrington discloses a system in which the A/R data records include asset-related information (see column 4, lines 39-42, Harrington).

Regarding claim 4, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the asset-related information is comprised of one or more data items selected from an information data group consisting of: warranties; periodic maintenance; payment schedules; payment history; proof of ownership of assets; proof of purchase; product recall data; tax related information; installment payment dates; expiration dates; renewal dates; expenditure history; and next mandated maintenance date (see column 4, lines 46-50, Harrington).

Regarding Claims 5, and 6, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the asset-related information is comprised of one or more data items selected from an information data group consisting of:

time and date of transactions; vendor; personal data of purchaser; addressing information of recipient; personal demographic information about purchaser and/or recipient; generic description of an asset; contract terms and conditions; entity purchased from; and contact information; and the data items also include transaction type information including: purchase, rental, lease, and contract signing (see column 4, lines 35-65, column 5, lines 1-46, Harrington).

Regarding Claim 7, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the user-referenced subsystem further includes a security controller (see column 5, lines 52-55, Harrington).

Regarding Claims 8, and 9, Harrington in view of Barlow disclose a system in which the security controller is operable to set a variety of authorization levels that determine and select those A/R data records to which the request processor shall have access (see Fig 3, steps 74, 76, 68, 80, Barlow).

Regarding Claim 10, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the A/R data records are encrypted (see Fig. 9, step 186, Barlow).

Regarding Claim 11, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses the A/R data records including personal preference information (see column 5, lines 48-51, Harrington).

Regarding Claim 12, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the security controller enables communication via a trusted agent (see column 12, lines 15-25, Barlow).

Regarding Claim 13, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the request processor includes a facility that enables the user-referenced subsystem to respond to unsolicited requests for detailed information about assets (see Fig. 3, step 80, Barlow).

Art Unit: 2161

Regarding Claim 14, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the request processor receives a request for information from remote computing facilities (see column 16, lines 15-20, Barlow).

Regarding Claim 15, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the request processor assigns a unique transaction number to each request (see column 11, lines 63-63, Barlow).

Regarding Claim 16, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the request processor develops a history of transactions (see column 12, lines 15-23, Barlow).

Regarding Claim 17, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the records associator is a facility that automatically establishes associations between A/R records of various types, based on a set of criteria (see column 4, lines 12-22, Harrington).

Regarding Claim 18, the combination of Harrington/ Barlow discloses a system in which the records associator tentatively establishes associations at the time a transaction is made (see column 4, lines 46-50, Harrington).

Regarding Claim 19, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system including an inference engine and in which the criteria for the records associator are developed by the inference engine which is a software component of the records associator that analyzes consumers transactions as they occur, to derive likely associations (see column 4, lines 35-31, Harrington).

Regarding Claim 20, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system further including a user rule facility which is referenced by the records associator to develop rules of association (see column 4, lines 39-42, Harrington).

Regarding Claim 21, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system further including an editor/viewer in the user-referenced subsystem through which users access the A/R data records for the purposes of editing and viewing the same (see Fig. 4, Barlow).

Regarding Claims 22, and 23, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system further comprising an individual best coordinator (IBC), which is a process that provides decision support to a user based on a current transaction and current assets in the user's A/R DB (see column 12, lines 12-16, Harrington).

Regarding Claim 24, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the user-referenced subsystem comprises a computer/software construct that is resident on a user's PC (see Fig. 2, steps 27, and 28, Harrington).

Regarding Claim 25, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the user-referenced subsystem comprises a computer/software construct that is resident on the Internet (see column 2, lines 36-40, Harrington).

Regarding Claim 26, 27, and 28, Harrington in view of Barlow discloses a system in which the user-referenced subsystem comprises a computer/software construct that is resident on a private database located outside of the user's individual PC (see Fig. 1, step 10, 11, and 13, Harrington).

Response to Amendment

Applicant argues that the references applied does not teach "the preamble of claim 1, the present invention is an asset tracking, managing and servicing system."

Examiner disagrees. The Examiner rejected the body of the claims since the preamble does not carry any patentable weight. And the rejection is not requires to reject the preamble.

Art Unit: 2161

With respect to the rest of the argument Applicant is attacking the references in a 103 rejection individually.

Applicant cannot show non-obviousness by attacking references individually where, as the rejections are based on combination of references. In re Keller, 208 USPQ 871 (CCPA 1981).

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to Applicant's disclosure.
